

CONFIDENTIAL CLIENT QUESTIONNAIRE

The objective of our office is to help people take care of themselves and their loved ones, give what they have to who they want to have it, and save taxes and fees in the process. Each plan should honor the client's individuality, encourage creative confrontation of mortality and consideration of how to transfer values as well as wealth. Where appropriate, we help clients "do well by doing good" through charitable giving. We aspire to carry out our mission with competence, intelligence, and integrity, and in a manner that reflects our personal values in the office and in our community.

Effective estate planning is built upon three fundamental elements:

- * gathering complete, accurate facts
- * articulating goals
- * applying knowledge of the law to achieve goals with available resources

These questions are designed to elicit the facts which describe your situation. This information is the cornerstone for developing the strategy and legal instruments necessary to achieve your goals. It will be a guide for periodic review of your estate plans and, eventually, for implementation of your instructions.

The information you provide is confidential. Please be frank and complete. If you have assembled some or all of the information for your financial planner, accountant, or for your own edification, feel free to attach copies of the work you have already done or additional pages. The facts, not the format, are what is important.

The questionnaire, designed for a married couple, asks who holds title to different pieces of property. "Who owns what" is critical information for evaluating the impact of estate tax and the probate of an estate at death. Property may be in your individual names, in joint tenancy, tenancy by the entirety, tenancy in common or community property. If you are not sure which it is, indicate "not sure" and we will resolve the question later.

Because you are unique, this questionnaire may not touch all the issues which are important to you. Please add your own comments and concerns to make it a useful planning tool.

Attorneys at Law

At Cane & Boniface, PC, we understand that planning your estate can be an emotional process for you. It may have taken you several weeks, months, or even years to call our office. Preparing for one's death or incapacity is not something anyone likes to think about, but it is very important for you and your family to have a proper plan in place. Our goal is to help you devise a plan that you understand, that makes you feel comfortable and that meets your family's unique needs.

In order to prepare for our initial meeting, we would like you to think about the following questions. Some questions may not apply to your situation and you may not know all of the answers. We expect that you will have many questions. You do not need to return this document with your initial questionnaire. These questions are intended to make our meeting more productive by introducing you to issues that may arise during our consultation.

- Have you thought about who would serve as your executor and trustee?
- Have you thought about who would make health care decisions for you if you could not make them for yourself?
- If you have minor children, have you thought about who would care for them and/or manage their inheritance? Have you discussed this with the guardians you have in mind?
- How responsible are your children/beneficiaries (young and old) with finances? How easily are they influenced by friends and family members?
- Do your children/beneficiaries get along?
- Are there family members who may object to your plan?
- Are any of your potential beneficiaries suffering from substance abuse problems? Have a gambling problem? Have a spouse of whom you do not approve?
- Are any of your potential beneficiaries disabled or receiving public benefits?
- Are any of your potential beneficiaries involved in a profession that is prone to lawsuits?
- Do any of your potential beneficiaries have a large estate of their own?
- Do you have pets that will need to be cared for upon your death? Do you have a family member or friend who is willing to care for them?
